ADMISSION 25 CENTS. CHILDREN 15 CENTS.

DIVERS AT WORK UNDER THE SEA — as shown in the WILLIAMSON SUBMARINE Moving Pictures

Did you know that coral lives and breathes? Of course you didn't. But it does! It dies every Fall and blooms again in the Spring! Did you know that fish play about the bed of the ocean? No? Well, they do. We will show them to you; we'll let you see them frolicking way down there where the sun never shines. You will see mothers instructing their young. You'll see the little fishes playing hide-and-seek around the coral trees. You must see these things!

The Dangers of the Deep Vividly Shown in Wonderful Pictures

SEE The marvelous pictures approved by the United States Government! The Wonders of Neptune's Gardens! The mysterious denizens of the deep! The first and ONLY pictures ever taken at the bottom of the sea! The desperate battle between a man and a monster shark! Big, green, slimy, vicious looking creatures! The most remarkable photographs in the world.—Dr. Paul Barish. He ought to know. He's one of the big fellows of the Smithsonian Institute.

MATINEE TUESDAY FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN 10 CENTS.

SELF-MASTERY HAS POWER FOR GOOD

Judge William H. Reeder, Jr., president of the Weber stake Y. M. M. L. A. board, was the speaker last night at the weekly joint session of the Huntsville Mutual Improvement Association. A number of musical selections also added interest to the session and a large congregation was in attendance. The subject discussed by Judge Reeder was "The Great Things of Life," and, in part, he said:

"There seems to be an inborn tendency toward great things. We desire to see great things; we hope and resolve to do great things, and we never cease to dream of them. When greatness is attached to any person or thing there is a general rush towards them. When a great man comes to town, we all want to see him; when we go to a large city, we all want to see the most magnificent buildings. Thus it is with all things.

"The sad thing in life is that there seems to be a lack of intelligent effort toward great things. A very small minority of human beings ever accomplish anything great, even in a relative sense. There seems to be other tendencies in every-day endeavor which retard the tendency toward the great. One of these things is what may be called downright laziness; in other words, following the path of the least resistance, doing the easiest thing and avoiding the hardest. Another and more active reason is that after we have made up our minds to do something greater than what we have done before, we postpone, until some other day, the start. There ought to be some intelligent effort toward great things.

"Our ideas of great things vary because our minds are active along different channels dependent upon varied conditions. That is true at least of material things. If I were to be asked what I consider the greatest achievement in life, I should answer, from the point of view of benefits in this life alone, the art of self-mastery; the self-mastery which means the having of ourselves under that control which will result in the doing of the right things always. The lack of self-mastery in this broad sense is the reason for the majority of the ailments and evils. Weakness and perhaps atrophy result in over-indulgence or excess of any kind. Even over-eating results in indigestion; drunkenness and vice from intemperance. On the other hand, the benefits derived from self-mastery are bound to be physical and word strength, mental growth and even greatness. The general exercise of self-mastery among human beings would result in the raising of the standards of men, and perhaps bring about finer feelings and a greater degree of equality. Self-mastery is within the reach of us all, but it involves hard work and application. Do always what good conscience dictates as right; make no excuses to yourself; do not compromise future well being for present momentary pleasure; set the mind to accomplish something and keep right at it."

HAZEL DAWN ATTRACTS

Hazel Dawn would appreciate the recognition extended to her at the Alhambra last evening by the citizens of Ogden. The Paramount playhouse was packed and standing room at a premium. The play is all that could be expected and only words of praise went out for the Alhambra. The music by the large orchestra, together with Mr. Whitaker's masterly work on the big organ assisted in making the program of the quality brand. There is nothing too expensive for the Alhambra to handle and we always get the first chance and we aim to make you happy in the playhouse where the dime looks like a dollar.—(Advertisement).

METHODISTS AT THEIR CONFERENCE

Salt Lake, Sept. 13.—Only three Methodist pastorates in Utah were changed, as a result of the appointments for the year 1915-16 by the Methodist annual state conference, jurisdiction of Utah, which closed with services at the First Methodist church last night. Bishop Naphtali Luccock of Helena, Mont., announced the appointments last night at the First Methodist church. Salt Lake retains all its pastors of the previous year.

The three changes are Logan and Price and the combined missionary pastorate known as Richfield, Marysville and Junction. The Rev. B. F. Fisk, formerly pastor at Logan, goes to Corinne and Tremonton, succeeding the Rev. G. W. Goodwin, who moves away, having no pastorate in this jurisdiction. The Rev. N. J. Lamb, formerly pastor of Richfield, Marysville and Junction, also moves out of this jurisdiction. The Rev. C. C. Hartzer, formerly pastor at Price, succeeds the Rev. H. A. Smith at Provo and Elberta, the Rev. Mr. Smith moving out of this jurisdiction.

The resolution presented to the conference by the Rev. Will A. Betts, pastor of the First Methodist church, that the conference reappoint for another year the present state superintendent, the Rev. E. L. Mills, D. D., was acted on favorably and he was so appointed. The appointments in full are as follows:

Superintendent of Utah mission and Salt Lake district, Edward Laird Mills.

Bingham canyon, Thomas Manwarling.

Corinne and Tremonton, B. T. Flaw.

Eureka and Mammoth, A. C. Oliver, Jr.

Logan, to be supplied.

Milford and Beaver, Samuel Allison.

Murray and Midvale, E. E. Mork.

Ogden, G. F. Rassweiler.

Park City, T. P. Cook.

Price, to be supplied.

Price, assistant, L. A. Jones.

Provo and Elberta, C. C. Hartzer.

Tooele, F. W. Brown.

Salt Lake, First, Will A. Betts.

Hill, E. J. Mager; Liberty Park, D. E. Carter; Waterloo and Heath, Martin Thomas.

Superintendent of Richfield district and Salt Lake Norwegian and Danish mission, E. E. Mork.

Richfield, Marysville and Junction, to be supplied.

Mt. Pleasant and Ephraim circuit, Henry Fryer.

FIFTH WARD TO AID TWELFTH

An address on the subject of "The Spirit of Generosity," by Judge H. H. Rolapp, and the reading of Marion Wentworth's "War Brides," by Kathryn Bassett Pardoe, were the principal features of a program that drew a capacity congregation to the Fifth ward meeting house last night. The special purpose of the meeting was for the ward people to consider the matter of assisting their former fellow ward members, now members of the Twelfth ward, to raise money to complete a new ward chapel. The purpose was fulfilled in a decision of the people to donate $5000 to the cause.

The remarks of Judge Rolapp were along the lines of Christ's teachings that it is better to give than to receive, but better even than generosity is to acknowledge and do justice. A ward committee consisting of Heber Scowcroft, Judge Rolapp, Alva Scoville, Henry Volker, Bishop J. W. Ure and Bishop's Counselor Chris J. Brown, appointed some time ago to devise ways and means to help the people of the Twelfth ward, reported that the best way would be to donate $5000 to them. This, it was stated, would pay off the equity now held by the Twelfth ward people in their old ward.

The reading of the great "peace" drama, "War Brides," electrified the congregation, the profound lesson in the story being vividly brought out by Mrs. Pardoe through her power as a reader. Several piano solos rendered by Miss Noble during the service were also appreciated.

We've Installed a Modern Plant

For the Service of Ogden Kodakists

The old way of doing things in Kodakery has been done away. Modern methods of efficiency simplify and lessen the cost of developing and printing kodak films and prints. Let us tell you of this new feature.

We have had in the past week in full operation in this store a large, modern plant which is planned to take care of any amount of Kodak developing and printing, to do the work better than it has been done heretofore, to deliver the finished prints on short notice, and to cost less than you have been in the habit of paying.

Kodakists will enjoy visiting the plant and we want them to do so, tomorrow or any day thereafter.

This new plant handles films and prints almost automatically and yet does it so well that your finished prints will show an improvement over the usual methods.

The developing will be done in large, specially constructed tanks which are designed to get the utmost out of exposures made by amateurs.

The washing of the film is accomplished in large tanks of constantly changing fresh water, which positively and quickly removes every trace of the developing solution at just the right time.

The films are dried in immense cabinets through which currents of slightly warm air are electrically drawn.

A new system is used for the making of the prints from the finished film, with a view of giving it just the proper amount of time in order to secure the desired exposure.

The prints are then carefully worked out by hand, the operator watching each print until just the right amount of development has been secured. They are then placed in a washer in which fresh water, mechanically circulating, gives each one a thorough and proper cleansing.

For drying, the prints go into large cylinders between long layers of thick, absorbent paper. cylinders are placed in machines which send a steady and constant current of slightly warmed air, and there remain until ready to come to the owner, smooth and unwrinkled as the new paper on which they were printed.

The time service will appeal to all kodakists, if your films are in our hands by 9 a. m. they will be ready for you by 6 o'clock of the same evening. Films delivered to us by 6 in the evening will be ready for delivery by noon of the next day.

These prices, too, will be attractive, and remember in reading these prices that every print is positively guaranteed.

THEATERS

AT THE ORPHEUM.

Evidence that landmen are greatly interested in things pertaining to the sea was noted last night at the Orpheum theatre by the presence of two large audiences drawn to the playhouse to view the famous submarine motion pictures taken by the Davidson submarine expedition off the Bahama islands. From the pictures seen last night and others, in the opinion of many local people, a most interesting spot for the taking of motion pictures than the Bahama islands, could not well be found.

A number of pictures of scenes on the islands, of native life and nature's wonders were taken by the Davidson expedition. In addition to the submarine pictures, and these are given a place on the "movie" program which opened at the Orpheum last night. Before the main pictures are shown, the audience is given a pictured explanation of how they were obtained and this alone is of much interest.

The under-sea films give a view of nautical life truly wonderful and a tinge of excitement is added to the views of the fish and other sea animals by the scene of a fight between a man and a large shark. From an educational viewpoint as well as that of entertainment, the pictures are well worth seeing.
